I. INTRODUCTION

Tourism means experiencing a culture, location, language, cuisine and activities different than one's own. Maharashtra's culture and heritage has to be preserved, conserved and promoted in order to develop tourism. Most of the villages in Maharashtra is having potential to attract tourist, but because of the inadequate infrastructural facilities, it is lacking behind.

Drivers behind increase in Tourist Traffic Domestic Tourist Traffic

- 1. Rapidly increasing purchasing power of the middle class.
- 2. Better road connectivity
- 3. Evolving lifestyle

International Tourist Traffic

- 1. Value for money/economical holiday destination
- 2. Business cum pleasure destination
- 3. Opening of the sectors of the economy to private sector/ foreign investment.
- 4. Reform in the aviation sector such as Open Skies Policy has led to better connectivity with many countries with India.

II. METHODOLOGY

An exploratory research is used in the study. This study was designed to find out the Development of Tourism in Maharashtra. 250 tourists were taken as sample for this research. For collecting information structured questionnaire was prepared. It was not possible to visit each and every destination personally. The data was collected by giving questionnaires at Bus station, Railway station and Airport and some through mail and telephonic conversation.

Table 2: Purpose of visit by Visitors (%)

Table 7: Satisfaction level of services by Domestic Overnight Visitors (%)

68% of the respondents agreed that the most popular destinations in Maharashtra are overloaded 24% disagreed and 4% were neutral.

The respondents were of the opinion that there is unplanned development and overcrowding at eco-sensitive zones like Panchgani and Mahabaleshwar. The respondents suggested that Bhandardara in the Sahyadris, Amboli can take the pressure off Mahabaleshwar.

When the respondents were asked about the development of tourism because of forts, they said the state has unique history of forts 76% agreed, 18 were neutral and 6% showed disagreement. Those who agreed were majorly of the opinion that Maharashtra is the only state in the whole world having highest number of forts. The glorious Maratha history of which we are so proud would not have been possible without these forts. Today, these forts lie in ruins. Their history, architecture and their purpose are a unique factor which has not been sufficiently capitalized upon.

The Sahyadri mountain range in the Western Ghats as a potential tourist destination is totally neglected. The Sahyadris are a trekker's paradise. It is a potential hot-spot for nature trails, camping, guided nature walks and trekking. The Sahyadri ranges are even used for preparatory climbing by many trekking enthusiasts before embarking for the Himalayas. A Sahyadri mountain range institute can be established to train and conduct trekking camps on the lines of the Himalayan Mountaineering Institute.

There are numerous historical 'wadas' in and around Pune belonging to Mahatma Phule, Lokmanya Tilak and other eminent personalities. The history of social reform in Maharashtra and even in India cannot be told without a reference to these locations. There is a general air of unconcern about conservation and maintenance of these monuments. If they were to be revived, conserved and promoted properly, a new form of historical tourism can take place.

Maharashtra is home to several forests and tiger reserves. Besides Nagpur, there are tiger reserves in Sahyadri, Nagzira, Bor and Sindhudurg. Setting up ecological resorts and tourism centers will help to boost the employment opportunities for the locals and also maintain and the resort.

III. CONCLUSION

Tourism development is on-going, gradual and continuous process, Maharashtra has a long way to go if it has to be portrayed to the whole world. For development of tourism in Maharashtra, long term plans should be set with creativity and free thinking. Maharashtra tourism industry should provide scope for local entrepreneurship, so that it will provide dynamic environment for the local communities to grow and become one of the powerful tools of economic growth.
